Charlie and the Chocolate Factory

Charlie is a poor boy who lives in a house with his four grandparents and his parents.

Near Charlie's house is the chocolate factory of Willy Wonka. He closed it to the public and now only some mysterious workers live in it.

Wonka opens his factory only for five children. He hides five tickets inside his chocolate bars. The five children who find them can enter the factory for one day.

Charlie is a good boy. He gets only one chocolate bar on his birthday and is very excited to get in, but he has no money.

One day he finds a coin and buys two chocolate bars. In one of the bars there is the golden paper to get into the factory.

Charlie and the other children enter the factory. He behaves very well on his visit to the chocolate factory. The other children do not behave well.

Augustus Gloop is greedy, he gets into a river of chocolate and goes down a pipe.

Violet Beauregarde eats a piece of gum and inflates like a balloon and turns purple.

Veruca Salt is selfish and falls down a hole into the garbage.

Mike Tevé is hooked to the TV and he shrinks.

Wonka eliminates the bad kids and he sees that Charlie is modest and a good boy, so he decides to give him the factory as a gift when he grows up.

Eventually, all the families go to live in the factory and are out of poverty.
