

Braille

We challenge you to create a poster for blind people. Look at the Braille English patterns. Use a paper and a punch. Under the paper, use a cork base to create your message.

When you write Braille, you must write the cells in reverse order and you also must write letters from right to left so when you remove the paper from the slate and flip it over to read the raised dots, the Braille cells will be in the correct orientation and order to properly read them.
